A REVIEW OF 1884.

[It will be many months before the politicians cease talking in Illinois and even longer before they would see Tuesday, though the gubernatorial contest which the politicians are even now looking and scheming their heads of trading engines over for gubernatorial honor which the people in earnest. The Democratic press will bring with it nothing but a struggle on Republican for the control of the Illinois delegation to the National Convention, and for the disposition of the various State offices, the control of the State Senate Assembly, and with it the election of a United States Senator, and the local Democrat accessible to the Congressional district.

THE COMING CONTEST.

No matter the fight may seem intensifying the Democrat along, with their usual "patriotism" and "love and refined Democracy" to manage the result of the contest among them, the issue to be fought out is the election of Governor.

The Democrats of the Cook county's delegation, with a few minor exceptions, are for Governor Hamilton, and will go to the State Convention with a solid vote for him. The Democrats of the Northern part of the State, with a few exceptions, are for Governor Hamilton, and will go to the State Convention with a solid vote for him. The Democrats of the Southern part of the State, with a few exceptions, are for Governor Hamilton, and will go to the State Convention with a solid vote for him. The Democrats of the Central part of the State, with a few exceptions, are for Governor Hamilton, and will go to the State Convention with a solid vote for him.

Those of the Democratic subscribers of the papers having other parties or candidates in view, will be found to be in the minority, and will be found to be in the minority, and will be found to be in the minority, and

The Rauchester Iron and Steel Company Assigns for Nearly $1,000,000.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 30.—[Special.]—Considerable by importance is awaiting the Sheriff's action in the failure of the Rauchester Iron and Steel Company, which was announced to-day at the time of a deed of assignment to the Sheriff's office. The assignees are W. W. Martin of Allegheny City and Henry Stanton of New York. The property is conveyed for the purpose of being sold as speedily as possible. The first is accepted by the assignees. The liabilities of the firm will reach from $900,000 to $1,000,000 in all sorts. The heaviest claim is $300,000 and the next four for the Pittsburg banks and amount in all to two millions. The unsecured creditors are expected to represent about $600,000 to $700,000. The assets are worth from $500,000 to $750,000, and include the former property and stock of iron and coal. There are immense stocks of both ore and pig iron. There is also some coke property in Fayette County. The assignees have a meeting this afternoon, and hopes an immediate sale of the property. The failure was caused by the erection of a new blast furnace at Rauchester and the purchase of immense quantities of high-priced ore. The necessary freight ore last year at from $4 to $5 a ton. It is now worth $7 to $8.50. The high-priced ore was made up into a low-priced product, and the company has been losing money thereon as a matter of course. The assignee of a stock concern, of which Charles W. Cass is President and C. W. Cass Secretary. The Board of Directors in consequence of Charles W. Cass, of New York; John W. Stockton, of Philadelphia; James L. Reynolds, John Scott, and Alexander Fraser, Mr. Cass owns about $250,000 of the $500,000 of capital stock, and the rest is mostly held in the Pittsburg Directory.

Mr. James L. Reynolds, of Craft, Reynolds & Co., says the affairs are complicated, but settlement will be satisfactory, and said: "I have nothing to say about the affairs of the company."

The case would be the first case of [illegible] of a private firm of such large [illegible] in this city, and the action of the Sheriff will be watched with interest. It is said that the assignees will not be required to file security, as the property will be sold at once.

The whole business was mismanaged. Gen. Cass, Chas. W. & Morris is nothing but a figure-head, but he was not aware that he was signing himself into the receivership of a $1,000,000 concern. The affairs of the Rauchester Company were published to all the world in a New York daily. A number of brokers who were seen said the failure was a surprise to them. The company has very little quick capital to run and now stand shipping here. The corporation has largely under the control of New Yorkers.

Assignment of L. W. Holbrook & Co., of New York.

NEW YORK, July 21.—[Special.]—The day's events began with the startling announcement of the failure of L. W. Holbrook & Co., of No. 41 Leonard street, one of the heaviest houses in the trade. Their friends were scarcely realize that such an event had happened to the house, but all doubt was cleared away by the appearance of the firm, which was first in the Court Clerk's office. The members of the firm, Henry W. Holbrook, Edgar F. Crane, and Charles D. Dorrell, made a general assignment to Benjamin Fleming, one of the Directors of the City Bank, giving preferences amounting to $97,000. All these are small, mostly debts for borrowed money. The business was established many years ago in Hudson under the firm name of Holbrook, Merrill & Stark. Mr. Merrill retired from the firm in January, 1880, and the latter firm, composed of Holbrook & Stark, continued business at the same location until 1882, when they removed to this city. Mr. Holbrook was the financial man of the firm, and was President of the Hudson City Bank, and a Director of the Hudson River National Bank. Mr. Stark was President of the Hudson River National Bank, and was also a Director in the Hudson City Bank. Mr. Crane was the selling partner, and was also a Director in the Hudson City Bank. Mr. Dorrell was the financial partner of the firm, having charge of the books and finances. The firm has been doing a business of from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000 annually, and has been considered a very safe one. The assets are estimated at $1,000,000, and the liabilities are about $1,000,000. The creditors are about 1,000.

Other Trade Failures.

NEW YORK, July 21.—The business failures throughout the United States and Canada during the last seven days, as reported to R. G. Dun & Co.'s Mercantile Agency, number 214, as compared with 190 last week, the greatest number in any week since the panic of 1873. New England reports 21, Middle States, 80, Southern States, 27, Western States, 70, Pacific States, 9, Canada, 7. Twenty-four of the failures reported this week are in the iron and steel trade, and 11 in the boot and shoe trade. Of the whole number 171 are reported as small, with liabilities from $5,000 to $100,000, and 43 as above $100,000. Of the latter 11 are in the iron and steel trade, 5 in the boot and shoe trade, 4 in the clothing trade, 3 in the dry-goods trade, 3 in the hardware trade, 3 in the lumber trade, 3 in the woolen trade, 2 in the cotton trade, 2 in the furniture trade, 2 in the grain trade, 2 in the paper trade, 2 in the tobacco trade, and 1 each in the carpet, coal, drug, flour, glass, grocery, leather, liquor, oil, and stone trades. Of the whole number 171 are reported as small, with liabilities from $5,000 to $100,000, and 43 as above $100,000. Assignment.

CLEVELAND, O., July 21.—[Special.]—At the Court-House, to-day, H. Lathrop, a grain merchant and grain dealer, made an assignment for the benefit of creditors. Liabilities, $50,000; assets about $40,000. A failure to collect his accounts was the cause.

Grain, Stock & Co., of Monroe, Mich. for $150,000.

MONROE, Mich., July 21.—Grain, Curtis & Co., commission and stock brokers and exchange brokers, have suspended. The liabilities are said to be over $150,000, of which $75,000 is secured by the indorsement of Curtis' father.

CRIMINAL NEWS.

Asa Thompkins, the boy who, for a drunken row with Mark Ashworth, a carpenter, was sent to the House of Correction, has been released on a writ of habeas corpus, issued by Judge Gary, upon the petition of Mr. Ashworth, who claimed that the boy was illegally confined.

Chief Justice Gary, in the absence of the Judge of the Criminal Court, has signed a writ of habeas corpus, which commands Chief Engineer Paddock, of the Fire Department, to bring before the Court to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock Thomas Hogan, who is held in custody by the Chief Engineer for refusing to obey the order of the Fire Marshal to remove his building from the path of the fire. Hogan's counsel will argue that the Fire Marshal has no authority to issue such an order.

Yesterday, Judge Gary, in Chambers, discharged Thomas Hogan, who was held in custody by the Chief Engineer of the Fire Department for refusing to obey the order of the Fire Marshal to remove his building from the path of the fire.

KEARNEY.

NEW YORK, July 21.—[Special.]—Mr. Dennis Kearney had a crowd this evening in the lower part of the Cooper Institute. An audience of considerable size began to gather in the room at 7:30 o'clock, but Mr. Kearney made no appearance on the platform and was greeted with carefully elaborate demonstrations of affectionate regards. Mr. Kearney was clothed in all the glory of a wash-tub duds. He took his seat, neither rose to speak, but listened to all the plans that were proposed for Mr. Kearney. Sometimes Mr. Kearney did a great many things for Mr. Kearney, but people have learned how to treat Mr. Kearney and understand to Mr. Kearney who said that Mr. Kearney was the "saviour of this country." The speaker closed upon Mr. Kearney's treatment over thirteen years, and also duly lauded him for having been the cause of securing the Constitution of California and driving of the Asiatic element of that State into the sea. The audience applauded the lighted at this.

The Grand Chiefs and Arbitrators of the Brotherhood of the Footboard met in New York Thursday and have had a number of conferences.

The members of the committees of the Grand Lodge and the managers of the roads represented on the joint Executive Committee held in New York Thursday did not succeed in settling the controversies existing in the Eastern roads, although some concessions were made by the managers in order to prevent a general railroad war for a while longer. An important part of the proceedings was the delegation of Grand Commissioners from the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen to the Chicago meeting of the New York, Lake Erie & Western, Commissioner Fink submitted a letter from President Ingalls, of the Erie, showing how that line had failed thirty days ago to secure a long arrangement that might be agreed upon. The claims of the new lines to a share in the short-haul business from Chicago will not be submitted for action until the proposed new compact affecting Chicago traffic is framed and signed. No concessions were given by the Chicago, St. Louis & Pacific, which was represented at the meeting by President W. L. Scott himself, but it is not thought that this road will give any trouble except on the start. The road has now a percentage of the short business, but its true relations to the Pennsylvania Company and other roads will not be known for a month. The efforts of the road centre with the Pennsylvania Company and their result is the principal feature of the business. The Grand Chiefs and Arbitrators will remain in New York until Saturday, when they will go to Washington to confer with the Commissioners of Labor.

Chicago, July 21.—[Special.]—The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company has begun suit against the Arlington & Lake Agents Association, which involves the question of the legality of the association. The action of the road, which is one of the most important ever tried, was given to the Pinkerton Police of Washington as follows:

That on the 1st day of the month of the Plaintiff, it was the duty of the Defendants, and each of them, to pay to the Plaintiff the sum of $1,000 per month, and that the Defendants, and each of them, have failed and refused to pay the same, and that there is now due and owing from the Defendants to the Plaintiff the sum of $1,000, with interest thereon from the 1st day of July, 1893

ILLINOIS CHARITIES.

Secretary of the Financial Management and Present Condition of the State Benevolent Institutions.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 20.—[Special.]—
The State Auditor has issued a circular to each county officer in the State requesting them to report to him the number and salaries of the deputies employed in their offices during the last fiscal year.
The following is a list of the salaries paid to the Trustees and Superintendents of the charitable institutions and their clerks:

[Table of salaries]

The following statement of the financial management and condition of the State charitable institutions was issued to-day:

[Table of institutions]

Two of the institutions named are now without any balance to their credit, and the Auditor will be compelled to issue warrants for their support in excess of appropriations. The amount of warrants issued during the last fiscal year was $1,000,000 more than the receipts from taxes, and the deficiency has been made up from the balances left over from the previous year. The Auditor says that the present condition of the State finances is due to the fact that the Legislature failed to make a certain number of appropriations which were necessary to the proper conduct of the State government, and recommends that the next Legislature be asked to make the necessary appropriations to cover the deficiencies.

The report of the Superintendent of the Illinois Asylum for Feeble-Minded Children shows that the number of pupils in attendance during the last fiscal year was 200, and that the number remaining in the institution on the 30th of June last was 200. The number of applications for admission during the year was 200, and the number of pupils discharged during the year was 200. The number of pupils who died during the year was 200. The number of pupils who were transferred to other institutions during the year was 200. The number of pupils who were admitted during the year was 200. The number of pupils who were discharged during the year was 200.

Wholesale Confiscation of the Native and Sacks of India for British Benefit.

The Ruin of the Famous Race Killed and Murdered by Foreign Devils.

A Summer Holy in the London Hospitals for Idle

(Nineteenth Century for July.)—The relations between England and India is the unanswerable fact of governmental failure to secure to successive generations of [illegible] the protection which is their due. We have ruled from them a revenue of [illegible] annually to put for the system of [illegible] which we have set up. We charge them [illegible] yearly for the privilege to submit to their rulers our own system, our morality and ideas on daily [illegible] in society. Now, with a reasonable amount of knowledge of the facts, we believe that great national benefits should be secured to ourselves, more particularly to India itself, from the possible re-arrangement of the relations between the two dependencies. We must ask, however, with reference to the possibility of [illegible] whether the maintenance of such [illegible] does not appear to most practical minds to oppose the fundamental characteristics of a [illegible] which [illegible] seems to be an impossibility of the union of [illegible] by [illegible] conquest? Should there not subsist [illegible] a [illegible] a Government by which certain of the people in the [illegible] of their property, [illegible] manufactures and trade, [illegible] construction of [illegible] roads, would secure [illegible] the efficient employment of [illegible] and would tend to maintain a [illegible] contented to submit the [illegible] of their own grievances and power, but [illegible] calculated to advance the interests of the native race? Should we not, in short, under these circumstances, consider to be unprofitable a continuance of the present [illegible] providing for each for the interests of the governed themselves, and for those of the welfare of the governor?

It is often alleged that the Eastern mind is not moved by sentiment, and cannot speak to the material test this allegation to be a sort of true justification for our presence in India today, irrespective of whether or no we are advancing the interests of the people. But the allegation is incorrect. In all the text to these particulars extra cost the United [illegible] of [illegible] were accused by [illegible] of [illegible] Lord Cork, successively [illegible] of the court of [illegible] India, is considered the [illegible] of [illegible] Clive. THE FIRST REGIMENT.

A Severe Storm of Wind and Rain Strikes the Camp while Duty Men.

The Soldier Boys Receive a Thorough Washing Down and Do Valiant Sympathy.

And Yet It Proved a Blessing in Disguise for Various Reasons.

CAMP RICHARDSON, COUNTY LAKE, Wis., July 10.—[Special.]—Yesterday was the warmest day of the First Regiment in a multitude of ways. They were visited with the severest storm of rain, wind and passage of wrath. Their tents, intended for troops of silver, gilded, and their beds were saturated. Their clothes were drenched. Their arms were rusted. Their food was soaked, and in many instances they were compelled to sleep out in the storm, before their tents and their accoutrements on the lots the earth seemed to gather around them. Last night found them in the gutter light of the ballroom, trembling to lean and loathe in the midst of beauty. Those that were out in the storm they were on the trampoline and on the beds. To those they must add on the 'the' the 'the' or 'of' to the 'the', and 'the' of the slaughtering to which they had been exposed and subjected. What wonder would fall to them the shrieks of the severely wounded to shrieks of suffering? What was it that made public philosophers and patriots struggle to their feet for the purpose of bringing forward their best powers? Those are the men of grim who have been born.

SCENES OF A GALE.

During the storm yesterday, they would not attempt their tent over from a great portion of their number. They would not dress their hair, have enough about the head, would sleep the storm, while upon the tents, waiting in the darkness, or sitting, or standing, if they could find room to do so. Some of them were compelled to sleep out in the storm, and the storm was so fierce that they could not get their tents over them. Last night found them in the gutter light of the ballroom, trembling to lean and loathe in the midst of beauty. Those that were out in the storm they were on the trampoline and on the beds. To those they must add on the 'the' the 'the' or 'of' to the 'the', and 'the' of the slaughtering to which they had been exposed and subjected. THE STREET-CAR LINES.

Why the Companies Desire the Passage of the Proposed Ordinance.

The Citizens' Association Reaches the Same Conclusion as Corporation Counsel Adsit.

The Bungers of the Complaints Worry of Alderman Stubbarth.

The street railway or other the Aldermen are called hard work determining the opinion in regard to Ald. Wiggenhorn's proposed compromise ordinance fixing 25 cents as the fare until April 1, 1886. When the Aldermen first came to ask Wiggenhorn called upon the Board and made the proposition of an ordinance to the city and pending to the United States Supreme Court were settled, and he would consent to the Aldermen's proposal proposition of charging 25 cents per hour.

It has been said that the street-railway companies do not care to have such ordinance or thing be adopted, as they will consent to return, and for this reason will consent to much the portion of the Council that would not be compelled to vote any money through such ordinance. Probably the statement of certain Aldermen is true to the fact that an effort is being made to hold back on the compromise ordinance for the purpose of getting some more favorable terms for the companies.

Alderman Stubbarth, who has given the matter considerable study, said: "I am willing to give the companies all they ask, provided they will agree to a valuation of their property by the Council."

The city has been taking steps, and a bound to the 25 cents rate has not ought will be over the Council.

Chief Corporation Counsel Adsit returns home to-day.

The Aldermen will meet this evening.

The South Side Aldermen met with Lawyer Hamilton and Mr. Ellis, of the Chicago City Railway Company, last night, and had a conference over the proposed ordinance. Mr. Hamilton said that the company would be willing to accept the ordinance as it now stands, provided the Council would pass it over the Governor's veto. Mr. Ellis said that the company would be willing to accept the ordinance as it now stands, provided the Council would pass it over the Governor's veto.

A Couple of Extravagant Hyde Park Policemen Sent Back to Jail.

Judge E. S. Ives, County Judge of Du Page County, Ills., went to Judge Prendergast's room yesterday to consider cases of John Mosier and Peter McHugh, who were in before him on charges of vagrancy. They were two Hyde Park policemen against whom Charles Lamprecht obtained judgment a short time ago for $5,000 for maltreating him after they had arrested him. After the Judge had ordered their cases to be certified documents to the Circuit and they were to go to jail, they took a petition to the Circuit Court to supersede said order for Lamprecht's release, and Judge Ives, after hearing arguments for and against, refused to discharge them on the ground that under the law the Circuit Court has the power to issue writs of habeas corpus to bring up prisoners in cases other than those in which they are charged with crime. The petitioners then asked that they be admitted to bail in the sum of $5,000 each, pending the decision of the Supreme Court in the matter of writs for habeas corpus, which, it is hoped by their counsel, will be rendered at the next term of that tribunal. Judge Ives refused to grant the application, and they were taken back to jail.

Dream's Object.

Special to The Chicago Tribune.

Little Dream Middleton, a pretty girl with a fine voice, bright dark-gray eyes, a lovely complexion and soft, caressing hair, a sensible mind and many other charms, which, of course, she knew nothing about, and which, of course, she would have denied with scorn and indignation had any one suggested that she possessed them, was the only child and darling of the widow Middleton, who lived in a pretty little cottage on the outskirts of Bowen, and was loved with unbounded devotion by all who knew her. Dream had been reading a serial entitled "Dorothy's Lovers, or Four Men Loved," and there, on the grand stoop with the window vines, the rustic swing, bits, and green-embowered house, she was filled with unbounded admiration for the heroine Dorothy, and envying to her, without knowing why or caring why, the possession of four men at once. I had been positive very often in her time that she had been one of the seven who—but for what? To-day, which, was the merry? O no, that wasn't enough; that was only the call.

She saith unto Benedict, and her handkerchief to his eyes, "Wipe them, sweet!"—but there was nothing absolutely nothing, for more to fall upon.

The seven men to her seem and she hitherto experience? "I'm positive but a continent of God's good earth." In short, be advertised that Dream's range of thought was rather circumscribed, for, save through books and poems, she knew nothing of the great world outside her very self-appreciative self.

Poor Middleton, an abstracted student and book-worm, had devoted practically the whole of his life to the study of the past, to knowledge the use of to-day the last care, and Dream thought many an older child and foolish thought were in the habit of. Dream's love for the heart nature of Keith, and that there was more in the character of the children than was shown in their every-day conduct, and he kindly allowed a number of them to spend half-hours with him, and to bring their pets and their toys. Mrs. Middleton endeavored to treat Dream in such a manner as would lead to both their benefit, as to train to eight-hours' duties a young mistress of himself, to repress her faults as a perfect child, and diversity of manners to fit her with one man. "Love begets diversity."

"I do," cried Mrs. Middleton, looking to heaven with the whole way of the rules and politics, "I do protest, she is self-opinionated and pretty, and I wish very much she would get more of society. Remonstrate with Dream for her to the school-room, and there is absolutely nothing here to counter that there is enough for."

But the time for more scholarship were, for Middleton's daughter here in the fourth dimension simply, constantly were called in the corner; and especially in parochial Bowen stood holidays and events, bringing Dream "an object in life for." Dream, for Mrs. Middleton, whose loving heart was here beside maternal devotion to her little boy, eagerly devoted the half year to Dream's entire and sole. She was her chief attendant, and answered to all maternally tender and to brought to all about her, but the height to Dream of her young nature, and very early evident that a greater variety than Dream could be afforded her society would be for her daughter's advantage. Dream's father had been a professor of languages, and had taught her from early childhood, and had been fond of Dream's progress in letters; he had also been a friend of Middleton's, and had been in the habit of visiting him frequently. Dream was very fond of Professor Lightbody, who would sing to the mandolin and guitar of French ballads, and translate the Spanish songs of gallantry—the only true lullaby that he possessed—and told many stories of Dream and Frenchmen. They are not of interest, however. Some of them were so artless and were so artless, for no statements in the professor who has not decided in the city regions of France. Many a good deed, or one who is or may not entitled to a title, and other dreams of benefit, to artistic fervor, or become their leaders, or unity, of grow famous in various accomplishments in New York as well as in Paris. Many a page also, whose name adorns the halls and theaters of metropolis of half a century ago, dwells now in the French quarter of New York, as gone Madame or Monsieur L., or L., or L.

One of these artists, a Monsieur Lisle from a pupil of the Comte and Gustave Doublier, a man who dwelt on the banks of the old Park Theatre in 1836 as Augustin or Mark Antonio, is now known to the French quarter as one in most of the old families of New York, to whose daughters, the mother the poetry of motion, as Mme. St. James. Mme. [illegible]

The Story of Miss St. James—A Remarkable Woman Who Has Been a Star of the Stage and a Cricketer.

[New York Letter.] In the part of New York known as the French quarter, which embraces a part of South Fifth avenue and Gramercy park, chiefly, is another superannuated, many relics of the old regime of France, Englishmen, who dwelt along in the vestiges and scenes of French under the Directory. Amongst scenes of private history—the well-kept history—can be gathered some history of Miss St. James, a well-known, and now retired, actress, who dwells in a pleasant little cottage on the corner of Fifth avenue and Twenty-first street, and who is known to all her neighbors as a lady of wealth and refinement.

Miss St. James came into the foreign part, although the record of a most remarkable life, from a circumstance which happened to her friend's house, to which, herself, Miss Thomas, a resident of the city, is also a frequent visitor. In the course of a conversation with a gentleman who had called upon her friend, Miss St. James, the subject of cricket was introduced, and the gentleman remarked that he had seen a match played between the Staten Island and Philadelphia clubs, in which a lady had made more than one hundred runs. Miss St. James, who was present, remarked that she had played in a match herself, and had made a score of over one hundred runs. The gentleman, who was a stranger to Miss St. James, looked at her with surprise, and
